

General Description

Maintaining the grounds at the River Center tends to be predominantly volunteer-driven and occurs periodically throughout the month. We open the Trust's grounds to the public for your enjoyment and exploration of what we teach and provide here at the Coke Hallowell Center for River Studies. Removing palm fronds, dead-heading roses, planting saplings, mulching and weeding are just some of the needed tasks at the River Center. Gardening Angels work days occur on the second Saturday of the month from 9:00 am – 12:30 pm (hours vary due to temperature).
